A lot of patients ask if they can get contacts that would let them get rid of their reading glasses. For most people the answer is yes! Lenses like the Purevision Multifocal and the Air Optix Multifocal offer great vision in a very healthy lens material.. And here's another suggestion: some patients who naturally have good distance vision use just one contact lens for near vision.

Toric soft contact lenses for astigmatism differ from regular ("spherical") soft contacts that correct only myopia or hyperopia in two important ways:. Toric lenses have different powers in different powers in different meridians of the lens to correct the varying amount of nearsightedness or farsightedness in different meridians of the eye that characterizes astigmatism.

Contact lenses for astigmatism: Toric, GP and hybrid lenses

Contact lenses are thin, clear disks of plastic that float on the surface of the eye. They correct vision like eyeglasses do for myopia (nearsightedness), hyperopia (farsightedness), astigmatism and presbyopia, and are safe when used with care.

This is all about getting exactly the same lenses as normal, but paying less. Just like a DVD of Disney's Frozen, the same contact lenses may be sold by many sellers. Specialist online suppliers bulk-buy directly from manufacturers and sell from warehouses, meaning there are no expensive property overheads, and they often undercut the high street.
