Chemistry is the scientific discipline involved with elements and compounds composed of atoms, molecules and ions: their composition, structure, properties, behavior and the changes they undergo during a reaction with other substances. In the scope of its subject, chemistry occupies an intermediate position between physics and biology. It is sometimes called the central science because it ...

Nitrous acid is useful for destroying sodium azide solutions, which are toxic and potentially explosive. It can also be used to prepare diazonium salts, which combine with anilines and phenols to form brightly colored azo compounds. The latter type of reaction can be used to produce azodyes, as well as serving as a qualitative test for aromatic amines.

A metalloid is a type of chemical element which has properties in between, or that are a mixture of, those of metals and nonmetals. There is neither a standard definition of a metalloid nor complete agreement on the elements appropriately classified as such. Despite the lack of specificity, the term remains in use in the literature of chemistry. The six commonly recognised metalloids are boron ...

In a recent review published in Nature Reviews Chemistry, Cronin group researchers describe how machine learning, coupled with real-time chemistry, is set to change the way chemists discover molecules, reactions and reactivity, as well as removing researcher bias. The systems discussed would remove the need to have an biased human chemist making judgements, in favour of searching chemical space ...
